Mr. J. was the first Principal of North Technical College officially called on the 10th August 1900. He had been involved in the development of further education in North part when it was being done only to the point when he was responsible for twenty two teachers, ten technicians and three typists all employed & he was very involved with day to day work.

These classes were held in the old college main building at Nelson Street and also in an annex in part of the old North Academy at New Street. In the evenings classes were also held in North High School, North Street.

Due to suitable accommodation prevented any further expansion of N.T.C. premises, hence the reason for building the new college.
